Together with Prof. Antonio Silvio Calò [awarded by Italian President Mattarella as an Officer of Merit of the Republic in 2015, appointed European Citizen of the Year 2018 for his choice of welcoming 6 young refugees to live with his family], the president of the European Coalition of Cities against Racism [ECCAR] Benedetto Zacchioli, the coordinator of UNESCO's coalition of Inclusive and Sustainable Cities [ICCAR] Linda Tinio-Le Douarin and the award winning human rights activist Fatuma Musa Afrah we want to rethink the conditions for learning together with you.

Mostly, people only talk about how refugees can learn better and faster. It is rarely questioned what they need to learn. What are good conditions for learning? What prevents or hinders learning? And the most important question: How can these requirements be created in the city, in the institution, in the environment? In an interactive format we want to discuss these questions with you and learn from the impulses of our guests to find new answers.
