How someone lives is a very personal topic and at the same time we usually think that it also says a lot about the person. Housing can unite and divide. But what are the challenges and discourses behind the topic of housing? What influence do socio-demographic characteristics have on one's housing situation? And what creative ways are there to deal with this?

These are some of the questions we want to explore in this webinar together with Dr. Meric Ozgunes, the Programme Manager of the Major Development Agency Thessaloniki and Prof. Dr. Pieter-Paul Verhaeghe, teaching sociology at the University of Brussels with a focus on discrimination, migration and urban dynamics.
